Year 6 Visit the Natural History Museum

Last week 6B and 6JF finally had their opportunity to visit the Natural History Museum. In line with our Geography unit Natural Phenomena we explored the Earthquake and Volcanoes exhibitions, where the children could experience an earthquake simulation as well as see the effects of volcanoes on different parts of the world. The children also looked at the other exciting exhibits including Mary Anning's plesiosaur fossil displayed at the museum. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed themselves and had a great day.

We provided families with a chance to see how our children develop their science skills from Nursery up to Year 6. There were also many exciting science at home activities which families can do to extend and engage children with the world around us.

Mr Freeland's Book Review A Story Like the Wind

A boy finds himself on a small dinghy with a group of people. They are fleeing a war and have paid an expensive fare to make this dangerous journey. When the boy realises he cannot share the food, as he has nothing to offer in return, he is encouraged to share music, for his sole possession is a violin. The song he plays tells a story that enchants the passengers - and the bravery and hope they hear about gives them the strength to look forward to their freedom again. Gill Lewis's brief but beautiful story is rich in wonder, as well as being a timely reminder of the refugee crisis that continues today. Mixed with an exotic story of wild horses and a Dark Lord that rules a kingdom in peril, the boy's story is sure to work its transportative charms on readers. Unusual and memorable, with powerful illustrations.
