During this week, they took part in a range of activities about engineering including building parachutes for an egg drop, constructing towers from spaghetti and marshmallows and researching and presenting performances about a famous engineer. They also had two incredible trips: one to Tower Bridge where they learnt about the mechanics of London's most famous bridge and a trip to Anglia Ruskin University, in which they received a tour from current students and attended their own graduation! It was an incredibly inspiring week for all the pupils!

The children took part in an interactive story telling experience where they met Mary, the Angel Gabriel, wisemen and a shepherd. As you can see, the children were completely captivated by the experience!

Mr Freeland's Book Review Santa's Christmas Countdown

Santa's in a panic! Santa's in a tizz! He's lost his list of jobs to do. "I don't know where it is! Luckily, he's sure he can remember all his tasks. Watch as he and the elves oil the sleigh and wrap the presents, brush the reindeer and pack the snacks. And of course, his final job is to deliver gifts for everyone! With a touch and feel element on every page, young children will enjoy exploring Santa's world. Stroke his fluffy beard, feel the reindeer's hay, touch his velvety hat - even Santa's lucky pants are padded! The bouncy rhyming text pulls the reader through the story, and there are some funny details in the illustrations, such as Santa accidentally kicking over a pile of presents. Watch out for his dog and cat too! Many children are sure to be delighted to see someone magical who could look like a member of their extended family.
